The Virginia Mechanics' Institute Executive Committee at their last meeting, making plans for a hotel at Louisa at which there were several senators and members of the House, discussed the propriety of combining the State Library and the Mechanics' Institute ; also, as to providing rooms in the same building for the historical societies, Court of Appeals, and Adjutant-General, and, in fact, nearly all the officers of the State. This would require a building five stories high, 248 feet by 140 feet. The annual meeting of the Institute will be held in the Builders' Exchange Tuesday night at 8 o'clock for the election of officers and other business. Don't you know what a progressiveeuchre party is? Why, it is plain euchre so far as the game is concerned, but about twenty-four people play at a time, four at each table. Numbers are drawn in the beginning, and number one plays with number two against numbers three and four at the table, and so on to the foot of the list. When the first game is won on the first table a bell is rung, and the defeated couple at the first table go foot to table number six: the couple at second table which is ahead moves up to first table, and the head couple at number three moves up to second table, and so on. All couples which move up change partners at the table to which they are advanced, except the couple which moves up to first table. An account is kept of advances made by each lady and gentleman, and at the end of the game the two who have made most advances are presented with a prize.

The Countess Janish.

The Countess Janish will appear at the Richmond Theatre next Thursday, for three nights, in Sardou's great play, " Princess Andrea." She is nounced a fine actress by leading critics, and the toilets worn by her in this cause. There will be some fine singproduction are spoken of as marvels of | ing and beautiful tableaux beauty and elegance. The visit of the Countess Arco, Madame Janish, in Richmond last season is well remembered-how she appeared in genteel comedy and gave such pleasing renditions of her various characters. Although a foreigner by birth, and with difficulty mastering the English language, yet her pronunciation was so clear and distinct that every word was easily understood, the foreign accent and inflection lending her English a pe-

Late, But Not Too Late. The Gerke Brewing Company, of Cincinnati, one of the oldest breweries in this country, having faith in the pro-perity and future of the city of Richmond, have leased from the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, for a term of years, a piece of land on Seventeenth street, between Clay and Marshall streets, whereupon they will erect next week a warehouse for the purpose of storing their beer. This Company does own their refrigerator cars, in which they ship direct to their warehouse on Seventeenth street, the Chesapeake and Ohio railway having built a track expressly for them to the rear of their ouilding. Their arrangements will be perfect, and will enable them to furnish a cool glass of beer to the beer-loving citizens of Richmond during the warmest of seasons. Mr. Gus. A. Hoffman. formerly with the Anheuser Brewing Company, will represent them as agent Some of their beer, known as the Pilsener Cabinet, was on trial ve-
